THEY CHEERED FOR ALLISON.

Iowa Republicans Set Forth His Qualifications

IN A PECULIAR PLATFORM.

Allison's Record and Opinions—His Position Outlined in Regard to the Tariff, Finances and other Matters of National Policy.

Des Moines, Ia., March 11.—The Republican State convention met in this city to-day to select delegates to the national convention at St. Louis and to formally inaugurate the candidacy of Senator William B. Allison of Iowa for President. The convention was one of the largest ever held in the State, and hundreds of people were turned away from the Tabernacle in which it was held.

The forenoon session was called to order at 11 o'clock and Congressman J. P. Dolliver was named as temporary chairman. His speech served to rouse the enthusiasm of Allison's supporters to the highest point, and it was cheered from first to last. He did not devote a great deal of time to the discussion of Allison's claims to the Presidency, but devoted himself largely to an arraignment of the Democratic party for its incompetency in the management of government affairs.

A Representative Gathering.

The gathering of people at both sessions was perhaps the most representative of the State ever seen at a State convention. Several members of Congress had come home to attend the gathering, and all of them were given ovations by the convention.

The forenoon session did nothing but listen to the speech of Mr. Dolliver and name the committees on organization, resolutions and credentials. In the afternoon the serious work was done. A. B. Cummins of Des Moines was made permanent chairman. He made a brief speech which added to the enthusiasm.

L. N. Baldwin of Council Bluffs offered a resolution naming Senator John H. Gear, Congressmen W. P. Hepburn and David B. Henderson and J. S. Clarkson as delegates at large. There had been a movement to keep Clarkson off the delegation, but it was promptly squelched before the convention came to order, and the resolution carried unanimously.

An Unusual Platform.

The resolutions are in a form at variance from the ordinary doctrines of State conventions; they are in the nature of an address to the country on the claims of Allison for the Presidential nomination; the platform, briefly, is the public record of Allison, with which alone the platform-deals. They formally present him to the nation as a candidate, and call attention to the part he has taken in national legislation. The important sections of the platform are as follows:

Senator Allison has been a conspicuous figure in this beneficent work of the party throughout its whole existence. No other man in the nation more emphatically represents the constructive and resourceful capacity of the party to meet, in a practical and successful way, the difficult problems of administration. He has been a prominent and indefatigable laborer in all the difficult problems connected with the war and the means of sustaining it; reconstruction and the harmonizing of the sections; the abolition of slavery, and the overthrow of polygamy; the enfranchisement, education and upbuilding of the negro, supplementing in this the work which he early did in his own State; the raising of revenue to sustain the government; pay pensions and discharge thousands of millions of the public debt; the creation of our financial system and the return to specie payment; the creation of sound currency, the upbuilding of agencies for the development of the West; the reform of the civil service; the national control of railroads, the upbuilding of the American industries; the protection of dairy and agricultural products; the prevention of the Chinese and pauper and criminal immigration; and the creation of a pension list unequalled in the gratitude of nations.

Concerning the Tariff.

"If the dominant issue is to be the tariff, then no man better represents it, for no man has been oftener placed in the leadership in the formation of Republican tariffs than Senator Allison. For 20 years he has been among the foremost in their construction and discussion and always upon the line of that fair and sufficient protection that is the strength of the party policy. He was chairman of the sub-committee that after many months of investigation drafted the administrative provisions of the customs laws, accepted under all tariff bills since constructed as most efficient in their operation. He was chairman of the Senate committee that drafted the Senate substitute for the Democratic bill of 1888, which substitute was largely the basis of the Republican tariff of 1890. He had the Senate leadership again in the perfection of the last Republican tariff, where it received many of its important provisions, notably that of reciprocity. He was again selected by the Senate Republicans to lead the discussion and assault upon the free trade Wilson bill and his skill and influence operated largely in saving whatever measure of protection American industry secured under that law.

The Financial Question.

"If the financial question is to be the issue of the campaign then Allison is the man first commended to the nation by reason of his reputation for financial resourcefulness and constructiveness and soundness, a fact conspicuously recognized by the pressure of Presidents Garfield and Harrison upon him to take the portfolio of the treasury in their respective administrations. He has been favorable to a true bimetallism. He has at all times labored to maintain an abundant currency of gold, silver and paper, made intercomvertible and equal to the best currency of the commercial world. He has demanded for the business of the nation a currency equitable and stable free from the oscillations so dangerous to business interests, and so unjust to the wage earners of the nation, whose $35,000,000,000 of annual wages and many thousand millions in savings banks and other forms, constitute them the great creditor class of the nation.

National Foreign Policy.

"If the foreign policy of the nation is to be the issue, Senator Allison has held to the teachings of Washington and the teachings of Monroe—opposing all entangling alliances with other countries, assaulting no established rights of nations upon this continent, but firmly insisting that the political system of Europe shall not be enlarged and extended in this hemisphere, menacing alike the integrity of the United States and the Republican government of the continent.

"His experience and familiarity with every detail of governmental business is to be the test. Senator Allison has 23 years of intimate knowledge and experience gained as a member of the great committees of Congress to emphasize his eminent fitness."

The convention received the announcement of the 22 district delegates who had been named by the district caucus, before the main convention adjourned.

The Greater New York.

Albany, March 11.—The Lexow greater New York bill passed the Senate this afternoon by a vote of 38 to 8. The bill was not amended to-day, and now goes to the Assembly for concurrence.

OHIO CONVENTION.

State Ticket Nominated and Resolutions Adopted With a Strong Bimetallic Plank.

Columbus, O., March 11.—The Republican State convention to-day nominated the following ticket: Secretary of State, Charles Kinney of Scioto county; judge of Supreme Court, Marshall J. Williams, present incumbent; dairy and food commissioner, James E. Blackburn of Belmont county; member board of public works, Frank A. Huffman of Van Wert county; delegates at large to St. Louis, Senator-elect Foraker, Gov. Bushnell, Marcus A. Hanna and Congressman C. H. Grosvenor; alternates, Dr. Joseph E. Lowes of Dayton, John P. Green of Cleveland and J. W. Taylor of East Liverpool. Presidential electors at large, I. F. Mack of Sandusky and Albert Douglas, Jr., of Chillicothe.

The programme arranged between the McKinley and Foraker leaders as to the delegates at large to the St. Louis convention was carried out without friction. In the nomination of the State ticket there was a sharp fight between the Foraker and McKinley factions, with the result that the Foraker faction was completely defeated. The slate prepared by the Foraker leaders in the room of Senator-elect Foraker last midnight broke, except as to the candidate for State Food Commissioner. The Foraker candidate for this position, Joseph E. Blackburn, of Belmont county, was nominated by the combined strength of the Foraker delegates and the influence of the wholesale grocery trade.

Congressman R. W. Taylor read the report of the committee on resolutions from the stage and on his motion it was adopted as the party platform with amendment on discussion.

Ohio's Platform.

The platform is largely a regulation party document with few new features. It denounces the Democratic national administration, affirms the policy of protection with incidental reciprocity and denounces the free wool provision of the present tariff as an attack upon an important industry.

The currency plank is as follows: "We contend for honest money; for a currency of gold, silver and paper with which to measure our exchanges that shall be as sound as the government, as untarnished as its honor; and to that end we favor bimetallism and demand the use of both gold and silver as standard money, either in accordance with a ratio to be fixed by an international agreement, if that can be obtained, or under such restrictions and such provisions to be determined by legislation as will secure the maintenance of the parities of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, paper or gold, shall be at all times equal."

McKinley's candidacy is indorsed as follows:

"The people of Ohio take satisfaction in the expressions coming from every section of our common country of popular approval of their distinguished fellow citizen, William McKinley. The great advocate of protection, who has all his life stood for America, its factories, its farms, its firesides, finds his reward in the confidence and affection of the people, whose interests have been his constant care.

"As their candidate for the Presidency, the Republicans of Ohio pledge to him the absolute, loyal and unswerving support of his State at the national convention, and instruct the delegates chosen to represent Ohio to redeem this pledge."

RHODE ISLAND DEMOCRATS.

The State Platform is Silent Upon National Affairs.

Providence, R. I., March 11.—The Democratic State convention was held this morning. Thomas H. Vance placed in nomination for governor the name of George Littlefield of Pawtucket, which nomination was unanimously ratified. The remainder of the ticket was nominated as follows:

Lieutenant governor, August S. Miller, Providence; secretary of State, Geo. L. Church of Tiverton; attorney general, George T. Brown of Providence; general treasurer, John G. Perry of South Kingstown.

The committee upon resolutions then presented the platform. It made no mention of national affairs, treating merely of State matters. The convention then adjourned.

MR. DANA'S VIEWS.

He Regards the Situation as Favorable to the Cubans.

New Haven, Conn., March 11. Charles A. Dana, editor of the New York Sun, who lectured last night here, was entertained to-day by Prof. Marsh of Yale and Judge Harrison. He left this afternoon. He said in an interview on the Cuban situation: "I regard it as favorable to the Cubans. Spain is about to the end of its resources. It cannot send over another army. This one is going to succumb of fever and disease. The Cubans are in possession of the larger part of the island."

"What about Gen. Weyler?"

"From a military standpoint he is not as good a general as his predecessor, Martinez Campos."

CUBAN WAR NEWS.

Daily United Press Report from the Special Correspondent.

(From a Staff Correspondent of the United Press.)

Havana, March 11.—Bands of insurgents under the leaders Oliva and Hernandez are reported to have had an engagement which lasted five hours with Spanish troops at Montezuelo, near Mantua, in the western province. The battle resulted in the defeat of the rebels. The government troops are said to have had five wounded, while the rebels lost 16 killed. The town of Montezuelo was completely destroyed by fire, started by the insurgents.

The towns of Macagua, in the province of Mutanzas, and Pilotas, in the western province, were attacked also and partially burned.

The American citizen Walter Grant Dygart, regarding whose arrest and imprisonment United States Consul General Williams requested the authorities to make a report, has been confined in the jail at Guines for about three weeks. He is accused of being "El Inglesito," one of the insurgent leaders.

J. FRANK CLARK.

Investigation Deferred.

Washington, March 11.—President C. P. Huntington of the Southern Pacific railroad, who was to appear before the House Committee on Pacific Railroads to-day, sent word that he could not be present until to-morrow, and the investigation was therefore deferred until 10:30 to-morrow morning.

Newly Appointed Governor.

London, March 11.—Sir Augustus W. L. Hemming, the newly appointed governor of British Guiana, sailed from Southampton for New York on board the steamer Havel to-day en route for his new post.

Paris Exposition of 1900.

Paris, March 11.—Twenty-two countries have given notice of their intention to take part in the exhibition to be held in Paris in 1900.

NEARLY A FIGHT IN KENTUCKY.

Republicans Oust a Democrat From the House.

DEMOCRATS GO ONE BETTER.

Two Republican Senators Unseated—Republicans Break the Quorum—An Exciting Day but No Bloodshed—War Still On.

Frankfort, Ky., March 11.—All the conflicting elements in the Senatorial battle were almost turned into a bloodthirsty mob of Senators, members of the House and their adherents to-day. The combatants fought far nearer the riotous precipice than they have done since the deadlock. The House and the lobbies were the scene of excitement which needed only an overt act on the part of a Republican to provoke the use of knives, revolvers and clubs.

The Republicans had unseated Kaufman in spite of Dunlap's withdrawal of his contest to the seat and refusal to qualify. Quick with their revengeful spirit the Democratic Senators made good their threat to retaliate, and unseated Walton and James. The latter stepped into the house while he was being unseated, but remained a silent spectator of the partisan battle. Walton refused to leave the Senate chamber when he saw the enraged mob rush towards the House.

Storm Indications.

All of the indications last night pointed to a stormy time of it to-day. The Republicans though knocked off their feet temporarily by Dunlap's withdrawal of his contest of the seat of Representative Kaufman (Dem.) quickly rallied and it was decided on that side to push the fight against Kaufman regardless of his action. In anticipation of the excitement which would certainly follow the expected developments to-day, Speaker Blandford again enforced the rule excluding from the lobbies and galleries all persons except the ladies, and in consequence the crowd was again on the outside.

In the House there was a preliminary scrimmage over the distillers private brand bill and the previous question had already been ordered on the bill and amendments, when Mr. Howard (Rep.) of Butler, rose and called up the Dunlap-Kaufman contest as a matter of the highest privilege. Mr. Carroll made the point that the contest had been ended by the withdrawal of the contestant. In a minute the wildcat excitement prevailed all over the State House. Senators huddled together in the middle of the Senate chamber, while a mob crowded every entrance.

Two Senators Unseated.

The Democratic Senators yelled their votes unseating Senators James and Walton (Reps.). Three minutes later a mob was at the door of the House declaring that James and Walton should never go in there. In the mob were several men with their pistols in their pockets, standing at the door daring Republicans to attempt to bring the two unseated Senators there. Among them were Jack Chinn, Jim Williams, Senator Bronston, Senator Martin, Walton Sharp and Senate Doorkeeper Tyler.

Senator Blackburn was in the crowd counselling coolness. The crowd was mad when they learned that James had already slipped into the House, and had done so while they were unseating him in the Senate. Men and women rushed from the building when the yells told that the unseating in the Senate had been done, fearing a riot. The chief of police had a large body of patrolmen on hand, however. Dunlap, the newly seated Representative, attempted to enter the House, but was kept back by the crowd at the door. The Republicans tried in vain to induce Walton, the unseated Republican Senator, to have the knives and pistols and force his way into the House, but he refused to leave the Senate chamber.

Republicans Take Action.

Lyons contended that the House still had control over the Dunlap case, and said the contestant could not withdraw without leave of the House. The effect of the decision of the Speaker was to sustain this point and the House amid suppressed excitement proceeded to vote on the minority report, which is in favor of Dunlap. The minority report, which seats Dunlap, was adopted by a vote of 48 to 46, strictly partisan, except Poor and Edlington who voted with the Democrats. The Democrats then rushed from the hall in a wild stampede, and into the rotunda to break a quorum on the vote on the report as amended. Fifty-one Republicans, however, responded on the roll call, and Kaufman (Dem.) was unseated.

Doorkeeper Tyler (Dem.) and his deputies stood guard at the joint assembly door for a half hour before that body met and pressed back the surging mob. A fight was nearly precipitated when Register of the Land Office Reynolds (Rep.) demanded admittance. He and Sergeant-at-Arms Sommers were about to lock horns, when Senator Goebel and others stepped in and Reynolds was allowed to pass in. Pistols were bandished several times, and almost a panic was created.

The rotunda upstairs was filled with the mob, while downstairs and outside there was a big, but more orderly, crowd among whom were many ladies.

In Joint Assembly.

When the Senate was announced at the door, Speaker Blandford refused to recognize it, saying the doorkeepers usurped the authority of the House in keeping out members entitled to vote.

A hot colloquy ensued between the Speaker and Bronston. The Senator charged that the Speaker had or was attempting to usurp powers of the joint assembly, and he was proceeding to more revolutionary methods by moving to organize the joint assembly by electing Senator Goebel president, when through Senators Salyers and others order was restored. The Senate filed in and Speaker Blandford gave way. There was a long wrangle about whether the Democratic clerks of the Senate or the Republican clerks of the House should call the roll, the point of course being that a fight might arise over the calling of the names of Senators James and Walton.

The Democrats contended that the Senate clerk (Deml) was chief clerk of the assembly, and had the right to call the entire roll. Senator Bronston called attention to rule 11 of the joint assembly, and made the point that the clerk of the Senate is the clerk of the joint assembly, and as such shall call the roll of the entire joint assembly. The presiding officer ruled against Senator Bronston, and said that the clerk of the House would call the roll of the House, while the clerk of the Senate would call the roll of the Senate.

Bronston then rose and said that the presiding officer should divest himself of his partisanship and rule according to law.

"Kentucky's honor is gone," he shouted. "It has been trampled under foot. I say not by whom, but there is yet a chance for you, sir, to rule fairly."

After more wrangling the chair ordered the call of the roll.

The Roll Called.

The chief clerk in calling the names of the members of the Senate omitted to call those of James and Walton, the two Republican Senators who had been unseated by the Senate majority a few minutes before going into the joint assembly. The clerk of the House in calling the roll of the House members, omitted to call the name of Kaufman (Dem.) who had been unseated.

The roll call showed 130 members present with two pairs.

The roll was then called for a vote for Senator. The Republicans refused to vote. The ballot resulted: Blackburn, 64; Carlisle, 10; Buckner, 1.

No quorum voting the joint assembly dissolved till noon to-morrow.

After the adjournment of the joint assembly the crowd thinned out somewhat, but many still remained and to-night feeling is at a high tension. It is believed that Dunlap will refuse to qualify.

A POINT OF ORDER.

Relative Precedence of Cuban Resolutions and Delaware Contest.

Washington, March 11.—When Mr. Hoar's resolution to refer the Cuban resolutions now before the Senate in the shape of a conference report went to the calendar at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the parliamentary status of these resolutions remained unchanged. Mr. Hoar's motion was simply the channel through which he got the floor to make a speech and that speech could have been made as well in a discussion of the conference report proper.

The resolutions of the two houses having been sent to conference the Senate yielded and agreed to the House form of the resolutions. That agreement which is now before the Senate, is to a certain extent, privileged. It is not a privileged question, but a motion to proceed to the consideration of a conference report must be taken without debate and cannot be sidetracked, by unlimited debate.

The question of the right of a Senator to a seat in the Senate is one of the highest privileges, and would it appears, take precedence over the conference report. Vice President Wheeler held in the contested case of Kellogg-Spofford, that the question of consideration was in order immediately after the reading of the journal, and when Mr. Sherman appealed from that decision, the chair was sustained. It would doubtless be held now that the Dupont case was of greater privilege than the conference report on the Cuban resolutions, should the point be raised. An arrangement has been made, it is said, by Mr. Mitchell, in charge of the Dupont case, so that the two matters will move along without friction. To-morrow the Cuban question will probably come up during the morning hour but at 2 o'clock Mr. Mitchell will claim the floor and Mr. Pritchard for the committee will speak in reply to the speech of Mr. Turpie, which was concluded this afternoon. The Cuban question may then be taken up again.

As there is no rule limiting debate on a conference report it can be discussed just so long as Senators may desire. If the report is finally agreed to in the Senate it then goes to the House, where the agreement would in all probability be adopted pro-forma, the Senate having yielded on every point to the House. The report of the managers on the part of the House to the House is necessary to complete the record and show to the House that the subject matter was finally disposed of definitely.

The Senate, Hoar declared, must do its duty with courage and firmness. Whatever the Senate did should be done in a calm, quiet, dignified spirit as befitted the action of a great people. It ought to imitate not the excitement of mobs; it ought to indulge not in the impassioned eloquence of orators and not in the stimulant appeals or the love of liberty, or to any other public passion, good or bad. This was a time and an occasion for the judicial faculty.

At various points in the speech, Senators Sherman and Morgan were goaded into rather angry responses, but on the whole the debate went on with but small manifestations of asperity.

Turpie (Dem.) of Indiana concluded his three days' speech against the claim of Mr. Dupont to a seat in the Senate from the State of Delaware, and the Senate at 4 p. m. adjourned until to-morrow.

HOUSE.

Washington, March 11.—The postoffice appropriation bill was finally disposed of to-day and sent to the Senate.

The session was chiefly devoted to a consideration of the "spy" system in the Postoffice Department, as espionage upon letter carriers in the past two years has been called, and it was very vigorously attacked by several members.

Before adjournment Daniels (Rep.) of New York gave notice that he would move to-morrow to proceed with the consideration of the contested election case of Aldrich-Ribbs from the Fourth district of Alabama.

CHIEF OF POLICE.

Sir Richard Rowley Appointed to an Important Post.

London, March 11.—Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State of the Colonies, has appointed Sir Richard Edward Rowley Martin as administrator of all of the police in Bechuanaland, Matabeleland and Mashonaland. The appointment prescribes that the administration shall be surely responsible to the government and not to the British South African company, as hitherto.

Sir Richard E. R. Martin served with the Inniskilling Dragoons in the Boer war of 1881, and with the Bechuanaland police force from 1886 to 1888. He was British commander and president of the Portuguese-Swazi boundary commission and British commissioner to Tongaland in 1888. In 1888-'89 he was lieutenant commanding the Sixth Dragoons and promoted to the rank of colonel and retired in 1890. In the same year he was British commander in Swaziland.

ARCHBISHOP KENRICK.

His Funeral Took Place Yesterday at St. Louis.

St. Louis, March 11.—The funeral of Archbishop Kenrick took place this morning, the services being held in the old Walnut Street Cathedral. The interment was in Calvary cemetery.

The doors of the cathedral were thrown open to the public at 8 o'clock, and inside of ten minutes the church, which seats but 800, held a congregation of nearly twice that number. The doors were then closed and several thousand people were content to wait for over three hours in the cold until the casket bearing the remains of the late archbishop were conveyed to the hearse and the funeral procession began its march to Calvary cemetery.

In the cathedral Cardinal Gibbons occupied the throne on the epistle side of the altar and Archbishop Ryan was seated on the opposite side.

All the officiating priests were pastors of local churches. At the close of the service, the immense crowd slowly fell into procession and the march to the cemetery began shortly before noon. The ceremonies at the grave were brief.

Trials at Johannesburg.

Pretoria, March 11.—The trial of the members of the reform committee and others, charged with plotting against the government, who were arrested in Johannesburg and brought here, was resumed to-day. Witnesses were placed on the stand who described in detail the conduct of affairs in Johannesburg under the brief regime of the reform committee.

Stopped by the Police.

New York, March 11.—The boxing contest between "Kid" Lavigne and Jack McAuliffe at Madison Square Garden to-day was stopped by the police before the close of the sixth round.

AS IT IS NOW AND AS IT WAS.

Something of the Past and Present History of the Work Co.

CLAIMS NEVER LOOKED BETTER.

Lessees Making a Fine Showing—Looks as Though the Company Had at Least Four Mines Three Steam Hoists Being Erected.

Work is one of the oldest and best known companies operating in the Cripple Creek district; the company is in possession of six claims on the slopes of Raven and Bull hills, a desirable location; all the ground is patented and receiver's receipts received; many good veins have been opened and the present indications are such as to lead to the belief that the company will own at least three good mines in the time to come.

The Poorman claim, belonging to this company, was the second mine in the camp to ship, and this brought the stock into immediate prominence. But water came into the shaft and as a windlass and bucket was the only means of getting it out, and as about two buckets flowed in while one was being hoisted, work was given up there and the shaft has not been touched for about two years, although there is rich ore in the bottom. In the meanwhile the company got into litigation with the Anaconda company, but it sold the conflicting ground for stock and this was divided among the stockholders in the form of a dividend.

On the Morning Glory about $18,000 worth of ore was taken out in the early days of the camp but somehow or other the vein was lost and the mine got out of ore. The $18,000 was spent in working the other claims, the treasury stock was all or nearly all sold and the next thing the company had a debt of $3000 and the stock was selling at from 1 to 2 cents.

A New Management.

This was the state of affairs when what might be called the new management took hold, with Mr. J. Arthur Connell at its head. This management has been severely and adversely criticised for what it has done, but there would appear to be absolutely no ground for this criticism. The management found itself at the head of a company with a big debt that was likely to be closed up at any moment, no money in the treasury no ore in the mines and with only 14,000 shares of stock, which was then selling at less than 2 cents per share, in the treasury. The first thing done was to sell the treasury stock and settle up a debt owing to the Gazette Printing company, which was pressing for payment, then a loan of $,000 was secured on the properties, which was not a very easy thing in those days when the value of Cripple Creek territory was problematical.

Listing the Claims.

The next consideration was whether the company would sell all or part of its claims and wind up the affairs, sell the claims, give bonds on them or grant only straight leases. The company was not financially able to operate but the claims had to be worked and the leasing system was finally decided upon. It is in this particular that the management has been mostly criticised, but it has proven to be the wisest step that could have been taken. The company now has no debt and at the same time has no money in the treasury worth talking about, but it has had its properties developed in good shape, and about $50,000 expended upon them, while the amount of ore taken out by these lessees has not exceeded $10,000 worth. Where would the company have been had it been called upon to expend this amount? It is true that many of the claims have been shipping ore on and off for about two years, but not in sufficient quantity to pay. Had bonds been given on the claims there would have been a limit to the value of the stock, while to-day it is more valuable than ever before. The lessees are working harder than ever, they have long leases, it is true, but they are putting in expensive machinery and deserve them and cannot begin to extract anything like enough ore to cut the mines during the term of those leases.

Lincoln Boy Lease.

The most prominent lease being operated on the Work properties is that owned by the Lincoln Boy company on the north end of the Morning Glory. This lease was purchased from the former owners, and a big production is being prepared for. On this portion of the property, the biggest steam hoist on Raven hill is being erected. It is a 10x10 cylinder engine and a 95 h. p. boiler, the plant being the same size as that on the Buena Vista, belonging to the Isabella company. A contract has just been let to erect a large shaft house with ore bins, etc., which will cost about $1000. The double compartment shaft is now down 275 feet, but sinking has been suspended for a few days while the Cameron pump is put in working order to handle the water. The shaft will be continued to a depth of 200 feet before drifts are run opt, and then it is expected that the shipments will be heavy, as a large quantity of ore has been opened up, but no attempt made to take it out. The shaft is located on the steepest slope of Raven, and although it is above the tunnel in the gulch the territory of the lease is below the tunnel. The shaft is now about 150 feet below this tunnel and is going down deeper. The lease has one year from next November to run and the royalties, which are only moderate now, are much heavier from November and during that year of the lease. The Lincoln Boy company spent about $600 on the property last month, and the Work company is very gratified at the work that is being done.

Welsh and Nestor Leases.

What is known as the Welsh and Nestor lease, which includes all the territory above the big tunnel, is now also owned by the Lincoln Boy company. The lease was recently purchase from Messrs. Welsh and Nestor for a good round figure and has about eight months more to run. The tunnel in which the work is progressing is the same on which the company expended so much money and which was put in a distance of 650 feet. It was here that the vein was lost, but the late lessees are supposed to have struck it again in an upraise. All the work is, on account of the terms of the lease, by upraise. It has now been extended a distance of about 60 feet and at this point some good ore has been encountered and considerable quantity taken out. A drift is now being extended to the west from the tunnel level, 170 feet below the surface, and a vein has been encountered but its extent is not yet known.

Ida B. Lease.

On the Ida B. lease, another brand new plant of machinery is being put up, the same size as the Ingham. The lease is owned by the Golita company of Denver, of which G. W. Baxter is president, M. J. MacNamara vice-president, J. W. Moore secretary and H. E. Insley treasurer. The company has agreed to put the shaft down to a depth of 500 feet or 400 feet lower than it now is. The lease was purchased from Mr. Thorjne, a Swede, who, after considerable work, was making a very good showing. A small streak of ore was followed down from the surface on this property, but it has now widened out to 12 inches, and the ore in the bottom of the shaft runs from $50 to $70 to the ton. The lease covers 400x65 feet of ground and expires in about 18 months.

Relf Lease and Doctor Vein.

On the south end of the Morning Glory yet another steam hoist is being put up. A good deal of work has been done on this ground which is known as the old Relf lease. There are two shafts, one 100 and another 150 feet deep, but it is in a shallow shaft north of these that the most important strike has been made. At this point it is generally conceded that the Doctor vein has been opened up. The Doctor people say that it is on line with their workings but, as is the case where the vein is supposedly opened up on Jack Pot ground, the ore shows only low values. The shaft was put down 25 feet and then lessees went back to their deepest shaft and cross cut for the vein and, after from 60 to 70 feet of work, have just succeeded in cutting it. It is yet too soon to know its extent and values at this depth. The two other shafts are on a vein that is not known to have been opened up elsewhere on the hill.

The combined leases are employing between 60 and 70 men, but are doing development work more than anything else. They have been developing for some time and when they get down to shipping ore quite a big output and a big increase in the number of men employed is looked for.

Two Claims Not Worked.

At present the Little Clara and the Poorman are not being worked, although the company has plenty of good applications to lease. It is probable that the company will operate here itself in the future, and the properties are being held with that object in view. The Work has also had several offers for its claims, one of $50,000 for the east half of the Morning Glory being refused.

It is possible that the company has not received all it should in the way of royalties, especially in the high grade ores, so to prevent the possibility of this Mr. Waddelton has been engaged to look after the properties and will make the round every day.

The Work company is now on a solid basis and the management laughs at a public that is frightened because there is but a hundred or two in the treasury, for it has the making of several good mines and a group of claims each of which could be sold for a handsome sum. Work is probably not a company of to-day, but it certainly is of to-morrow.

CRATER COMPANY WILL OPERATE.

Has Ordered a Big Steam Hoist for the Old Summit Shaft.

Cripple Creek, March 11.—A new and large steam hoist has been ordered by the Gold Crater company to be placed over the old Summit shaft. This shaft is now 520 feet deep, and it is the intention to put it down a good deal deeper.

A very rich body of ore has been encountered in the Last Dollar. It was struck in the new working shaft in a cross-cut run at the 162-foot level. From the cross-cut a winze was started and in a very short distance this big body of ore was found. There is four feet of it which will average $400 to the ton.

The Pharmacist is now said to have encountered an extremely rich streak of ore in the bottom of the shaft, which is down 100 feet. The streak is 18 inches wide and carries fabulous values.

Another big tunnel enterprise is under way. This time it is the Cripple Creek Tunnel and Transportation company that is going to operate. The tunnel starts at the west base of Beacon hill and from there runs in an easterly direction for a distance of 5000 feet. This will take it through Beacon, Guyot and Raven hills and it will cut the earth at great depth. A plant of machinery will be put in at once by Messrs. Orman and Crook, who have contracted for the entire distance. Mr. S. S. Rathbone is secretary and Mr. J. B. Orman is manager of the company.

Mr. Walter Church, president of the Gold Development company, arrived here from Boston a day or so ago. He is very much pleased with the properties that the company is developing, and after inspecting the Pueblo Gold Coin and the Trinidad Gold Queen, which are located near Victor, he decided to erect a steam hoist on one of the properties and to push work.

Messrs. Blackwell and Wilcox, two prominent capitalists of St. Louis, are in camp. They spent all day inspecting their claims on Gold and Bull hills. They are working the Claude on Gold and the Nightingale on Bull, and are much pleased with the prospects. These gentlemen in connection with Mr. Simmons of the Simmons Hardware company of St. Louis, will organize a mining and leasing company and purchase other properties and develop them. Associated with them are Prof. E. B. Kirby and Mr. Frank S. Ingolsby, two well-known experts. The latter gentleman has charge of the work at camp.

A report is current that the Galena, on Red mountain, is about to resume shipments. The ore bins are said to be full and work to have been resumed in good shape after a spell of idleness. This is an especially good thing as it brings a part of the camp to the front of which but little has been heard lately.

SALVATION ARMY.

Latest Developments in the American Revolution.

New York, March 11.—Ballington and Maud Booth decided to-day that they would not reply to the cable message of Gen. Booth to his American troops. It was intimated, however, that the ex-commanders will have something very pertinent to say in the near future.

Nearly 200 persons have asked for admission to the Defenders' League, and that branch of the organization promises to be an important and successful one. The number of soldiers and officers who have voluntarily resigned from the Salvation Army and been enrolled in the American army is now about 350, while nearly 1,000 have declared their intention of doing so.

In addition to the English organization and that of Ballington Booth revolters, a third Salvation Army is in progress of formation. It is headed by Capt. Fred Rodger, a well known rescue mission worker in this city, and will be known as the American Rescue Army. The scheme of this new army is broader than that of the Booths' organization, as it proposes not only to bring men and women under religious influences, but also to furnish them with food, shelter and work if needed.

Those at the head of this new Salvation Army movement say that with a fund of $10,000 they can inaugurate an effectual working organization.

Baltimore Methodist Conference.

Baltimore, March 11.—Bishop Henry W. Warren of Denver, this morning called to order the 152d annual session of the Baltimore Methodist Episcopal conference. The morning session was devoted to electing the conference officers and getting things in working order for the general business to follow.

At 12 o'clock the conference took a recess until evening.

Change of Directors.

New York, March 11.—At to-day's meeting of the board of directors of the Western Union Telegraph company, the resignation of Charles F. Mayer, late president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company as a director of the telegraph company was accepted and Mr. John K. Cowen, the new president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company, was elected in his place.

BLUE BIRD AND UNION.

Transfer of the Claim with the Ornithological Appellation.

UNION HAS LUCKY GUS VEIN.

The Other Mines Greater and Richer Than Ever—A Tale Oft Repeated but True—What the Last Shipment Contained—100 Men Working.

It is an old story but it is nevertheless true, that the Union company's properties are to-day looking better than ever. The management is very conservative, it will not let all the best things it knows appear in print as it does not desire to even border on the realms of exaggeration, but all those who visit the mines are elated with the showing and cannot help bubbling over a little.

News about these very valuable properties is always interesting and the latest and most important item from this quarter is that the Lucky Gus vein has been cut. The Gazette has reported progress on this work from time to time. It was thought that it would be cut inside of 60 or 60 feet, but it was from 75 to 80 feet before it was encountered. The vein has only just been struck and its dimensions and values are not yet known but it looks well. The cross cut was from the Orpha May workings at the 170 foot level.

In the Main Workings.

The three main workings of the company are the Pike's Peak, Orpha May and Porcupine. The Orpha May shaft is now down 3000 feet and from the lower workings on the fifth and sixth levels there are some very large and rich bodies of ore. In one of the drifts there is a fair sized streak of ore that will run $2000 to the ton, and the larger quantity of second grade ore carries from 9 to 10 ounces of gold to the ton. Two cars of this second grade ore were sent out last week and went at the rate of 9.52 ounces to the ton. Two more cars leave the mine this week. The mine is now connected on two levels with the other workings and it is only a matter of time when all the workings will be connected.

The Pike's Peak shaft is down 350 feet. There are four shafts on this vein, the Pike's Peak, Breecher, Seaborn and Kincide, and the present work is directed towards connecting all these workings which will give good ventilation and facilitate matters generally. The company is now working over 100 men and there is not a single heading in the mine that has not ore in it and good ore at that. A tremendous amount of ore is thus opened up and no attempt is being made to push the output. The development work, on the other hand, is being pushed ahead all the time and it may be easily understood that 100 hardly worked shifts can do lots of it in a month. The drifts on the Orpha May and the Porcupine veins now overlap each so the claims have been cut across their entire distance. These two veins and the Lucky Gus just opened up run across the western end of the three claims and the Pike's Peak on the east end. There are probably others, at least two more are known of which were cut while driving for the Lucky Gus vein.

The specimens of ore, some in their natural state, some sawn and others broken in half are among the finest ever shown from Cripple Creek. They are in the company's office in the El Paso Bank block.

The Blue Bird Company.

The transfer was made yesterday of the Blue Bird claim on Bull hill by Mr. F. S. Johnson and others to the Blue Bird Gold Mining and Milling company.

The Blue Bird is a well known claim. It is a full claim and was patented long ago. Its location is next to and immediately south of the Union properties and some of those veins undoubtedly run through the property. So that as it may, the Blue Bird is independently a valuable property as several pay veins have already been developed.

The north half of the property is divided into three blocks measuring 266 by 300 feet and on each of these blocks a vein has been encountered. From each of these veins ore is being shipped, the ore running from $100 to $200 per ton. One of the most recent shipments made from this part of the claim was at the end of last month and the car of ore sampled 7.46 ounces in gold to the ton.

On the south end of the claim a good vein has been opened in three places, and in another place four veins have been uncovered within a distance of 30 feet. One of these veins shows values of 11 ounces. This part of the property may be operated by the company or may be leased, the matter has not yet been decided.

All this is quite apart from the main workings of the company where the shaft is down over 300 feet. It is put down on a good strong vein from which a large quantity of ore has been shipped from the day when pay ore was first discovered there.

Of the shafts on the north end of the claim which are being worked by lessees, two are down 125 feet and another 75 feet. In one of these the extension of the Porcupine vein is being worked on.

The company will be conservatively worked and the development looked after in the same manner that the Union company has done. The capitalization is 1,000,000 shares with a par value of $1 and 200,000 in the treasury. The officers and directors are: F. S. Johnson, president; J. A. Cummings, secretary; J. F. Cummings, vice-president; A. E. Vest, treasurer; J. B. Woodworth.

The brothers Cummings were the original owners of the claim, which was among the first to be patented on Bull hill. The stock will probably be listed with the Mining Stock association and registered with one of the trust companies. Over $100,000 worth of ore has been shipped from the claim.

AFTER MORE DUCKS.

President Cleveland Started Hunting Late Last Night.

Washington, March 11.—President Cleveland sailed away from Washington to-night at 11 o'clock on another of his duck hunting trips. His destination is Widewater, Va., about 40 miles down the Potomac, where Colonel Richard Weller has several ducking blinds.

As usual the lighthouse tender, Maple, conveyed the party, which consisted of Mr. Cleveland, Commander Lamberton of the navy, who is the lighthouse inspector for the Potomac river district and Dr. Reilly of the army, the President's physician. The President and his friends arrived at the Washington and Norfolk steamboat wharf at 11 o'clock in the White House carriage. Immediately after they went on board the Maple the lines were cast off and the little vessel steamed down the river.

Filibusterers Stormbound.

Charleston, S. C., March 11.—The alleged filibuster Commodore remained in the harbor all day, fearing to put to sea on account of the heavy gales. She is a very small steamer and would have had a very rough time outside. Her officers and crew remained aboard of her all day. She has a pilot and will go out as soon as the weather improves, possibly early to-morrow morning.

THE CITY FREE READING ROOM.

Considerable Subscriptions Have Been Secured.

WORK BY MR. PASTORIUS.

Two Subscription Lists Have Been Circulated Over Five Hundred Dollars For Book Purchases—Other New Books.

A great deal of interest has lately been awakened in the Public Library of this city. Some months since Mr W. S. Stratton very generously presented it with $50. Since Mr. Stratton's gift a great effort has been made to obtain $50 more to be invested in books, as it was thought that with about $100 worth of new books it would be possible to make the Public Library an institution of great value to the residents of the city.

With this object in view Mr Pastorius started a subscription list with the following result:

Besides the above, the Colorado Springs Furniture Co. donated $8 in furniture and the College Book Store, the Consolidated Book Store, the Dickens Book Store, the Low Book Store and the Postoffice Book Store each gave five dollars in books at cost price. These books have just been placed in the library, and are as follows: Andersen's Fairy Tales, Aesop's Fables and Picture Fables; F. H. Burnett, Little Lord Fauntleroy; Brief Honors; Col. Since Mr. Pastorius's list was started Mr. Craig and Mr. Bancroft helped the cause by each presenting a landscape painting to be sold—the money to be used in purchasing books.

It was thought that the citizens of Colorado Springs would enjoy possessing these works by artists who have long been associated with the city, and therefore a second subscription list was started by Mr. Pastorius to purchase the paintings, to be hung in the reading room of the Public Library when the sum of $70 had been subscribed. By adding their names to the list the people helped buy books for the library and at the same time purchased these works of art to beautify the reading room:

DR. ESKRIDGE'S LECTURE.

Aphasia, or the Lack of the Power of Speech, with Examples.

The third lecture in the course on brain function, by Dr. Eskridge, was given yesterday afternoon at Colorado College. The subject was "Aphasia, or the Lack of the Power of Speech." Dr. Eskridge began by telling that speech, in its beginning, is bi-lateral. It is also unconscious, as when the child utters a cry. The second step is to learn certain words by association. The child associates a desire for nourishment with the word "mamma." The more a nerve path is used the easier it is to start it in operation; and so the use of words become a habit. This gratification of natural desires is the primary impulse out of which the strong love for mother grows.

The next step in the child's education of speech is gained when he begins to use gestures. Here, Dr. Eskridge thinks, uni-lateral speech begins. This is the theory which he has himself constructed by long experience with patients suffering with aphasia.

His chief reason for this is because the brain centers for speech and muscular movement are so closely related and placed in juxtaposition.

The senses of taste and smell next come into use in connection with speech. A pleasant odor or taste comes to the child and it says "dood," meaning good, as an expression in speech of its particular sensation.

Muscular sense is the last to be used in connection with thought. A banker can distinguish a coin of inexact weight to the difference of one-fortieth of its true weight. This comes by higher education of his muscular power to detect minute difference in weight.

Dr. Eskridge brought down two patients from Denver who had been suffering from aphasia. Mr. Dotson, a man who while laid up by a broken leg in St. Luke's hospital, was struck by a maniac on the head. He was unconscious for some time and then regained his faculties for a time, except the power of speech. His language was confused. In a few weeks Dr. Eskridge took the case. To questions he would make some remark wholly irrelevant and without meaning. His lesion was in and by this and other means at the centers of speech in the brain. A portion of the skull was removed where the pressure occurred. He began rapidly to improve, and was instructed by Dr. Eskridge to write a letter each day, so that a record of his case might be preserved. The following is a copy of a letter written about one month after the operation:

"Dr. Eslirh la well in very udy to day day I hope that in adns dase sull bebble to w.lties keek labri lan mano It trope is for get to

to Dr. Eslish

WM H DOTSON,
Edmont, Kan.

In another month his talk was sensible, but simple.

Dr. Matthews, the other patient present, underwent a similar operation. A portion of his skull three inches in diameter was removed and a tumor extracted. He was gradually but only partially restored. His case is a curious illustration of the inter-relation of the centers of speech with those of sight and hearing. He can name simple objects by sight, but more complex objects are too difficult for him. He cannot write a copy by sight but can, upon seeing another write, do the same, showing the closer relation of the centers of muscular effort to those of speech than those of sight.

Dr. Eskridge will give his next lecture on Tuesday of next week.

Public Reciprocity Hearings.

Washington, March 11.—The subcommittee of the Committee on Ways and Means, having under consideration several bills relating to reciprocity and commercial treaties, will have a series of public hearings commencing Monday, March 16 and closing March 21. The committee desires practical information concerning the operations of the reciprocity treaties that were negotiated by the last administration and the effect of their repeal; also the obstacles that retard the extension of our export trade in the tariff or customs regulations of foreign countries. The inquiry will be confined to those two points.

The committee has mailed about 200 circulars of inquiry to merchants and manufacturers actually engaged in the export trade and also circulars to commercial and industrial organizations asking questions on these points.

Why Barbieri Fought.

London, March 11. The Rome correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says: He says that the government has received a dispatch from General Baldissera, who was superseded in the command of the Italian army by General Baldissera, explaining his motive for the attack on the Abyssinians at Adowa. The position of his army, he says, was becoming short and it is extremely difficult to obtain supplies, the roads being infested with Abyssinians. To retreat would have exposed the Italians to an attack. It would have been difficult to maintain the position. He held a conference with officers under him and they concurred in his opinion that it would be safer to attack the enemy than to retreat.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From the Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people never learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands of thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling symptoms. Beyond this, there are to day countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

Canadian Pacific Cable.

Ottawa, Ont., March 11.—The government has been officially advised that the colonial conference on the Pacific cable scheme will meet at London about April 14. In official circles here it is expected that Sir MacKenzie Bowell and Mr. Sanford Fleming will be the Canadian delegates.

Mr. G. Colliouette, druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with la grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail—and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first I began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. NEXT SUNDAY'S GAZETTE.

Next Sunday's Gazette will consist of sixteen pages. The increased size is made necessary by pressure upon the advertising columns, which cannot be met in a 12-page paper without entrenching too much upon the reading matter.

The paper next Sunday will contain more than the usual amount of mining, local and telegraphic news matter, besides special articles and the regular departments.

Special orders have already been handed in for a large number of extra copies, and the increased number will make this an especially attractive opportunity for advertisers.

FAIR ASSESSMENTS.

The assessors of the various counties of the State of Colorado are now in session in Denver—at least a majority of them are; and they are considering whether they had better comply with the law and assess property at its full valuation, or go on in the old way and assess at one-third, or some other fraction.

This old way of assessing at a fraction of the real value has been in use for so long that it will be very hard to change it. Each county is afraid that the other counties will get ahead of it and by returning a smaller comparative valuation, escape part of its share of the State tax. Besides that, the taxes to be levied for some of the State institutions are expressed according to the present law in mills of levy—the Institute for the Deaf and Blind, for instance, gets one-fifth of a mill on the total valuation. If that valuation is multiplied by three, as it would be if the law were to be complied with, the appropriation for the Institute would be multiplied by three, unless the legislature should intervene. But the great obstacle to obedience to the law, and to the assessment of property at the full valuation, is the jealousy of the counties, which are afraid that if they assess at the full valuation they will have to pay more than their share of the State tax.

The law is explicit; there is no getting around it, except by out-and-out nullification; and this nullification has been practised always, and every assessor has made his sworn return with mental reservations.

What the result of the meeting at Denver will be, we do not know. We fear that the old way will conquer, and the old system of valuation at a fraction instead of the whole, will prevail. But it ought not to prevail. The law ought to be complied with. The tax would not be increased, except in a few cases of State institutions, and the assessment in the various counties would be a great deal fairer than it is now.

Under the present system, one county assesses sheep at $3, another at $1.50, and another at $2, when the sheep will probably average up just about the same. In one county, real estate is assessed at one-third the real value, in others at one-fourth, and so the inequalities go. Even in the same county, some properties are often assessed at one-third, and others at a lower rate; and it is generally the largest property-holders who get the biggest rebates. We are not speaking of El Paso county especially; the late assessor was as fair a man as ever held the office, and tried to equalize his assessments as fairly as possible, and the present assessor is just a fair and honorable. But in many counties, the condition of things is as we have said, and it is not fair nor just nor legal, and it ought to be stopped.

Right here comes in the duty and responsibility of the State Board of Equalization. That board ought to be clothed with power to equalize the assessments in the various counties, to put up the valuation in counties where it is manifestly too low as compared with the others, and put it down in counties where it is comparatively too high. They ought to have the power, if El Paso county, for instance, should determine to assess at the full valuation, while Pueblo county, for instance, should still assess at the one-third valuation, to equalize the two on the payment of the State tax. We want to be honest and law-abiding in this county, and we understand that the present assessor is doing all he can to induce all the assessors to comply with the law and assess at the full valuation. He ought to be assured by the State Board of Equalization, that if he does this even though the others should not, this county will have to pay no more than its share of the State tax. If he cannot be thus assured, he will probably be justified by public sentiment in going on in the old way and uncasing his conscience with the law in the best way he can.

There are many advantages in following the law as it stands. First, it is the fairest way. It prevents the use of one fraction by one county, and another by another. It is the fairest in the county, too, for although it may seem just as easy to get a fair assessment at one-third all around as at the full value, in practice we do not think it is as easy.

In the second place, assessment at the full valuation would allow of the issue of bonds to a larger sum than is now possible; and in some cases that is desirable. People will not vote for bonds generally unless they are needed—you may trust taxpayers not to burden themselves unnecessarily; and the present limit, with the one-third system of valuation, is often lower than the real needs of a town or city.

Third, and most important of all, it is the only legal way. As we have said, the law is explicit, and requires assessment at the full valuation. If the assessor does not comply with the law, he has to make some very uncomfortable mental reservations when he swears that he has complied with the law. He ought not to be placed in any such predicament.

We wish very much that all the assessors throughout the State would make an iron-clad agreement to enforce the law, and to prosecute the first assessor that was caught violating it. That would set everything straight at once. And we wish that the State Board of Equalization could and would assure the assessors that the board would see to it that no county should suffer on account of being honest.

If there is need of any additional legislation to help out the assessors in this matter, we are sure it might be secured at the next session of the General Assembly. Certainly something ought to be done to correct the present vagarious and unfair way of making assessments.

FREE LIBRARY SUBSCRIPTIONS.

We are glad to announce that the Free Library has taken a new lease of life, and bids fair to double its usefulness very soon. A generous gift of $50 by Mr. Stratton has stimulated some of the friends of the library to renewed efforts. Mr. Church has undertaken to raise a fund by subscription, and Mr. Pastorius has done the same; and already Mr. Stratton's gift has been more than doubled through the efforts of these gentlemen. Mr. Craig and Mr. Bancroft, the artists, have generously contributed a picture each for the benefit of the library, and by contributing to the subscription now in progress, the donors will not only be giving to the purchase of new books, but will also insure the hanging of these paintings on the walls of the library building. In the absence of an endowment fund, the library is dependent on subscriptions for its running expenses as well as for its additions of new books. The management of the library is in good hands, and all those who contribute may be sure that their money will be used to the best advantage.

We publish in this morning's list of the subscriptions secured, and in most cases already collected, by Mr. Pastorius. One of the best features of the list is the large number of small subscriptions. This proves that a great many people are interested in the library—that it is really a popular thing, and that people who cannot afford to give their hundreds, or even their tens, are willing to give their dyes and their ones.

The money collected by Mr. Pastorius is to be used for the purchase of new books mainly works of standard and current fiction, together with a few art books. The library is very deficient in these departments, and a good selection of new fiction will do more to popularize it than anything else that could well be done. Further details of the subscriptions which are in the hands of Mr. Church and Mr. Hill will be published later.

The resolutions passed at the State Republican convention in Kansas are denounced by the Populist press as weak and misleading. The financial plank is a repetition of the last financial plank adopted by the national Republican convention—which was largely written, we understand, by Senator Teller and Senator Jones of Nevada. But the Populist papers are of course not satisfied with it, for the Republicans of Kansas are going to stay with the national organization, and will not bolt to the Populists or the new silver party. Such comment by Populist organs is pretty good proof of the wisdom of the convention's action.

The declaration of the Kansas convention for McKinley is the most significant declaration that has yet been made by any State. As things stand now, McKinley "has the call," and it is possible that he may be nominated on the first ballot. The situation may change, of course, between now and next June; and it is not probable that the result can be confidently predicted before the meeting of the convention.

The British press is careful to explain that the new Blue Book on Venezuela has not been "submitted," either directly or indirectly, to our American boundary commission. No, it has not been "submitted," it has only been sent over so that they may see what the British case is. Words are of great importance sometimes, in diplomacy.

Russia appears to be getting more out of the present misunderstandings in Europe than any other power. She views with entire equanimity the back-down of England on the Armenian question and the Venezuela question, and the practical ending of the Triple Alliance by the affiliation of Italy's African army.

We think it is only fair to the street car company to say that the service has been very much improved in regularity by the new schedule which recently went into operation. As compared with most other cities of the size of this, the service is now very good.

Between the Democratic gold men, who say that the United States treasury does not need any more revenue, and the Democratic silver men, who say it shall not have any more revenue, there will soon be a necessity for the issue of some more bonds.

All citizens who are interested in having the oil tanks moved outside of the city limits will do well to see their aldermen before next Monday evening.

Armenia and Cuba.

The Independent fills many pages of its number for this week with letters and other contributions descriptive of the terrible massacres of the Christian Armenians by the Mohammedan Turks. It is a frightful story, and all the more horrible when it is told by the missionaries without rhetorical ornament or careful literary art, and consists merely of the simple relation of authentic facts within their personal knowledge. Such crimes as the Independent says "cannot be read without shuddering for the patience, or rather apathy, with which Christian governments have treated this the most abominable crime of modern times."

After referring specifically to the neglect and indifference of the great European powers, the Independent expresses shame that even in our own Christian country only a few "Senators and Representatives in Congress appear to imagine that anything more is necessary than a passing expression of opinion." "We are ashamed if this is all we will do," it proceeds; "we are ashamed that Christian nations satisfy themselves with praying for the curse of God on such assassins, and upon such a country, and upon such a religion, instead of giving the utterance of their swords and bayonets to God's vengeance."

This expression of indignation is natural and creditable in our religious contemporary; and hence it is remarkable that in another article the Independent displays toward the Cuban patriots the same cold-blooded indifference of which it justly accuses the European powers, and more especially Great Britain, in the case of the Armenians. The Cubans are Christian also, and they are in sore distress. Even the Independent itself acknowledges that "the hand of Gen. Weyler is the hand of a merciless tyrant;" yet it would not have our government go so far as to accord belligerent rights to these barbarously treated Cubans. Their sufferings at the hands of the brutal Weyler, it says, do not justify us in requiring that they shall receive the benefit of the laws of war. "We do not see," says this cold-blooded religious paper, "how we as a nation can intervene in the present stage of the conflict, even to accord them belligerent rights." What will be the stage, then, when they gain the title to such intervention? Must we wait until Weyler becomes even more barbarous, and the inability of Spain to conquer them is even more obvious?

Armenia is far away, and it is subject to Turkey, which is under the supervision of the Christian European powers, by whose mercy alone the Ottoman State continues to exist. It belongs to them to restrain Turkish atrocities. Cuba is at our very doors. Its sufferings concern us, for it is American. But the Independent, which would have us cross the ocean to execute God's vengeance against the Turks, would timorously and selfishly and cruelly leave the Cuban patriots unprotected against Spanish barbarity. It would not even give them the slight assistance involved in the recognition of them as belligerents!—N. Y. Sun.

The Revenge of the Inferior Races.

The starting of an American watch factory in Japan and the rout of an Italian army in Abyssinia are of the one weaving in the loom of destiny. That is running night and day now in more than one quarter of the globe on a pattern which may differ in details, but is one in general design. The product is the barbarian's revenge. It is the turning of civilization's weapons on itself, civilization having, in order to employ its own crudest energies, so simplified those weapons that the veriest savage may use them.

The parallelism is nowhere more interesting to watch than in these two countries. Little more than forty years ago civilization—American civilization—broke in upon the continued slumber of the Mikado's realm. Little less than thirty years ago a British column pierced the passes which have just been made the graves of a whole division of General Baratieri's army, and forced upon a prince as harmless, if not as innocent, as Rasselas, by English thinking minds, the earliest ruler of Abyssinia a knowledge of the art of modern war.

For the one act Commodore Perry gained a fame not second to that which his brother won on Lake Erie. For the other General Napier became Lord Napier of Magdala.—(N. Y. Press.

Almost Equal to Denver.

If Eugene Field were alive to-day he would have an excellent opportunity to indulge in the weakness that he had for good-natured ridicule of Chicago's boasted culture. Henry Irving and Ellen Terry are now playing in that city, and the editor of one of its newspapers went to see "King Arthur." On bended knee he paid homage at the Court of Camelot, and the next day relieved his art-burdened soul thusly:

"Doubly brilliant was the warmth of the reception accorded to the man and woman in this galaxy of a city's most cultured types came to pay homage because of their conception and presentation of a great art and of their personalities in the work of years in uplifting, in its truest sense, the English-speaking stage." And then, not even satisfied to stop there, he continues: "More brilliant than any of these components of a gala night was the ensemble of art and settings and the appreciation and welcome and the plumage of fashion."

We would like to know if there is anything the matter with this picture of the "galaxy of a city's most cultured types." The velvet-pile, all-wool-and-a-yard-wide brilliancy of the picture fairly dazzles us, and then when the "foot ensemble" is added, with the settings and plumage of fashion thrown in, we feel as if there was nothing more in life worth living for. It is to be hoped that, encouraged by their success in uplifting the stage, Henry and Ellen will not try to uplift this editor. To do that would spoil our fun. Like Artemus Ward's kangaroo, he is an "amoosing little cuss." (Philadelphia Inquirer.

UNDER THE SPELL OF SOUSA'S MELODY

Concert of the Great Bandmaster Here Yesterday.

OPERA HOUSE WAS CROWDED.

The Audience was Enthusiastic—Brilliant Programme Rendered—All the Soloists were Artists of Much Merit—Local News.

John Philip Sousa, the great bandmaster and composer, who seems to have stepped into the place of the late Patrick Gilmore, with his band conducted a concert at the Opera House yesterday afternoon. It was the second time that Sousa has been here in late years, and he met a crowded house of admirers. It was a jam and largely composed of ladies. They began to arrive by 1 o'clock, and by 2 o'clock every one was in his place.

The programme given was largely composed of Sousa's own compositions, and that it was pleasing was demonstrated by the audience. In fact some of the enthusiastic people rather spoiled the first few bars of nearly every piece of this kind by applauding at the start. Among the numbers played was his latest success, written for the Atlanta exposition, and entitled "King Cotton." Sousa is an ideal leader and has complete control over his musicians. His manner is graceful and pleasing. He was most accommodating, too, and gave two and three encores after each selection. Sousa has been justly named the "March King," and certainly no other composer has ever written so many popular compositions. In that line Nearly every member of his big band is a soloist of merit as the audience had an opportunity of judging in the last number. It is entitled "The Band Came Back," and each member comes in, picks up his instrument and plays a solo, all ending in a grand chorus of patriotic airs.

The special solo numbers were of great merit. Miss Myra French has a soprano voice of great purity and good quality. She sang "Delight Valse," by Luckstone, for her first number and for an encore gave "Ben Bolt," as it has never been heard here before.

Miss Currie Duke is an accomplished violinist, and her number and the encore number were among the gems of the concert. She plays with force and her technique is admirable. Miss Duke is a daughter of Gen. Basil Duke of the Confederate army, who succeeded to the command of Morgan's men after that general was killed. After her number yesterday afternoon a beautiful bouquet of flowers was carried down to her, the gift of a Southern lady of the city. It was made up of carnations of red with a white cross through the center, and tied with red and white ribbons.

At the close of the concert, when the band broke into the strains of the national air a part of the audience stood up, and a good many thought that it was the proper time to make a break for the front door or to grab their wraps, and thus spoiled the effect somewhat. It is a custom in nearly every part of the world to rise when the national air is played, and a very pretty one. In fact, Pat Gilmore, when here the year before he died, asked the audience to do it.

The band left after the concert for Pueblo, where they played last evening. The concert was a rare treat and it is to be hoped that Sousa will find his second Western trip so successful that he will try it next season again.

CHEAP TRAVELLING.

Railroad Rates Low and Still Going Lower.

At the time of the big cut in coal prices a few weeks ago, it was generally understood that the railroads were deeply involved in the fight, and it was predicted that sooner or later passenger rates would again be affected. The battle began this week, and to-day there is fun for travelers. If in view of dullness on the stock market, rag chewing in the city council, or too much special bulletins any one has that tired feeling and doubts for the moment that Colorado Springs is a paradise compared to all other places, he can to-day, easily restore his faith by experiment.

By the expenditure of only 75 cents he can procure a ticket which will entitle him to transportation to Denver, where 75 cents fare will secure a joyful return on the next train to live happily here forever after; or if that seems too drastic a remedy for a passing complaint, for the price of one bottle of the celebrated homoopathic remedies at 25 cents, he can go to Pueblo. Other more distant points can be reached at proportionately low fares, as may be seen by consulting the Gazette advertising columns.

It is said the Gulf road was the first to drop the rates, but the Santa Fe and Rio Grande have met the proposition with a harmony that is touching to behold. It is believed that if the matter is not soon settled the Gulf road will begin juggling with Eastern and Southern rates.

ANCIENT VIEWS OF DEATH.

Professor Frazer's University Extension Lecture.

To the course of University Extension lectures, Professor Fraser contributes two on the views taken of death by the nations of classical antiquity. The thoughts of the vivacious and philosophic Greek mind when confronted with this supreme problem formed the subject of the last lecture; those of the sturdy, disciplined Roman are naturally of another type, so different as to claim the separate treatment which will be accorded in the lecture of next week.

If to-day, in spite of the light of modern science, hay even of the reassurances of religion, death claims with small dispute his ancient title of "King of Terrors," we shall not be surprised to find that when philosophy was the possession of the cultured few, and belief varied between a blind dread of capricious gods and a blank agnosticism that doubted both God and hereafter, death was most commonly encountered with sorrow and fear by the ignorant, with stern resignation by the stoical or with cynical carelessness by the world-weary, who believed that, however bad, it could not be worse than life.

In the very early times of Greek history the worship of ancestors prevailed, and led to an ill-defined notion of the state of the dead, which figured the soul as still consorting with the body in the tomb, there to receive with pleasure the attention of survivors, who on their part expect substantial favors in return. This view preceded the historic or literary period. From the time of Homer the course of national thought comes into clearer light. In his poems which the later Greeks referenced much as Christians do the Bible—death appears as the entrance to a state of wretchedness and gloom, a land of unsubstantiality, peopled by bloodless ghosts, weak and cheerless, without hope and without enjoyment. Such is the common destination of the just and the unjust, for as, on the other hand, the Elysian fields, or islands of the blest were reserved for the mythical and half-divine heroes, so also the punishments of Tartarus fall only on those whose wickedness transcends human limits. It is the mere emptiness of the ghostly existence which called forth the lament of Achilles in the underworld, that he had rather be a hireling on earth than king of all the dead. These views, supported by the authority of Homer, reappear at all stages of the national life, but in its late periods were much modified among certain classes by the influence of the Dionysiac, Orphic and Eleusinian mysteries, and of certain schools of philosophy. They do not appear calculated to foster courage, and evidence from both history and literature supports this judgment. To the ancient Greek they brought a dread of death which in Homer is expressed with outspoken vigor in the succeeding lyric period with languor and querulous dependency, but even as late as Aristotle with distinctness. "Of all things," he says, "death is the most terrible; for it is an absolute end, beyond which popular opinion assigns to the good man neither good nor evil." When, therefore, the dead are called "blessed," this simply means that they are free from life's pains; but this condition is little to be envied in view of the equal absence of joy and hope.

But, though dreading death, the Greek was often able to face it with calmness, nay in some cases with enthusiasm. "Death is fairer than an evil life," says one poet, while another declares that a glorious death, met in defense of country, is man's highest honor and fortune. The select few who were initiated into the so-called "mysteries" were privileged to take a still more advanced view, holding death to be an entrance into a higher life. The Eleusinian mysteries exalted the restorative forces of nature so far as to conclude that death must be followed by resurrection, not however, in all cases, but for those who were perfected, that is, for the initiated. The Orphic mysteries treated the soul as a particle of the divine essence, imprisoned or buried in the body, from which death opens the way of freedom. In the lyric poet, Pindus, these views first find literary expression, and blend in a somewhat illogical mixture with those inherited from Homer. And ancient legends, like those of Cleobis and Biton, conform to this opinion, according to which the blessedness of the dead was actual and positive. But the great tragedians lend it no support. It is in the Socratic teaching, as reproduced by Plato, that this cheering doctrine reaches its climax of confidence. Not only did the reasoning of this philosophy point to a future life in which the good would attain felicity, but, as everyone knows, the example of Socrates showed that the victory over the terrors of death might be not merely theoretic but practical. To his judges he said sublimely, "And you too must face death with a good courage, and believe this as a truth, that no evil can happen to a good man, either in life or after death. His fortunes are not neglected by the gods."

But the lofty views of Plato were attained by few. Later writers either attempt to find consolation in an immortality of fame—a poor guerdon if he who obtains it is unconscious of its possession;—or else fall back upon the merely negative view that death is at any rate a release from evil. One of the most complete practical expositions of this doctrine was afforded by the death of Theramenes, who met his end like Socrates, by the cup of hemlock, but who substituted for the great philosopher's heroic faith a jesting indifference. So Pyrrhon held that it made no difference whether one live or die, and when a bystander inquired, "Why, then, do you not die?" replied, "Because it makes no difference." But the preaching of Hegesias threw so much weight into the scale of death that he was called "Death's Advocate" from the number of suicides among his disciples. Such seeking of death was repugnant to the views of Plato as well as Aristotle, who held that it is cowardly to desert the post assigned by God.

College Football Conference.

There will be a conference of college football men at the University Athletic Club, New York, on March 13. The colleges to be represented are Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania, Princeton and Cornell. Each college will have one representative.

The object of this meeting is simply to decide whether it will be feasible to hold another meeting for the purpose of framing a set of football rules which shall govern the playing of all games next fall. Nothing further than this will be done at the preliminary meeting, but it is hoped that the object of those concerned will be attained. The advantages are plain to be seen, after the many complications which arose on the gridiron last season.

Dr. Brooks will in all probability be Harvard's representative.—(Boston Advertiser.

The Senator.

Judging from the indorsements that the Frawley company have received in San Francisco and the other cities they have visited, the theater-goers of Colorado Springs are to be offered a rare treat by the management of the Opera House.

Since its organization, almost a year ago, the company has been improved in personnel and equipment until it bears favorable comparison with either the Palmer or Frohman stock organization. It now embraces such well-known people as Daniel Frawley, Charles W. King, George W. Leslie, Maclyn Arbuckle, Wilson Enos, H. D. Blakemore, H. S. Duffield, George Bosworth, Frank C. Thompson, Thomas Phillips, George Osbourne, Blanche L. Bates, Hope Ross, Phose McAllister, Jennie Kennark, Lansing Rowan, Helen Mason and little Mildred. It carries its own special scenery, each of its plays is elaborately mounted and costumed, and is produced under the personal direction of Mr. Walter Bellows, who for several years was stage manager of the New York Lyceum company. They will be seen here on Saturday night in W. H. Crane's great American drama, "The Senator," and from the indorsement of the leading papers of the West, a genuine theatrical treat is in store for the play-goers of our city.

PACIFIC CABLES.

The Senate Committee Still Considering Two Propositions.

Washington, March 11.—The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations this morning considered the two propositions before it providing for the construction of a telegraphic cable from San Francisco to Japan via the Island of Hawaii and from the same city to Hawaii. No conclusion has yet been reached by the committee, but it is believed that one of two companies will be granted the right to construct the cable and be given a bonus by the government. Messrs. Gray, Turpie and Mills, Democratic members of the committee, are opposed to the granting of subsidies and will vote against the bill, but the Republicans say they have enough votes to make a favorable report to the Senate.

Charged With Insurance Frauds.

New York, March 11.—Detectives of the district attorney's office have arrested Graham McAdam, who was indicted several days ago for larceny in connection with Lloyd's Fire Insurance companies. McAdams is charged with issuing bogus charters for Lloyd's Fire Insurance companies and selling them. Indictments were also found against two other men, but these have not been arrested. It is said that the premiums of the fraudulent companies in one year amounted to $5,000,000, and that there were 120 bogus companies organized. The attorneys declare that McAdam is interested in 15 or 20 of them. The specific charges which have been incorporated in the two indictments were both charges of grand larceny in the second degree in selling bogus Lloyd charters.

The methods adopted by the conspirators in issuing the bogus charters was to ante-date them; that would appear that they were issued prior to 182. This would relieve the bogus companies from paying the deposit of $50,000 as required into the State Department of Insurance and of the necessity of having $250,000 of subscribed capital. Late this afternoon the prisoner was taken before Judge Newberger in general sessions chambers and committed to the Tombs.

A Ruling Reversed.

Washington, March 11.—Some weeks ago Comptroller Bowler made a ruling that prohibited officers of the navy from making allotments of their pay, thus setting aside a custom of the navy coexistant with the navy itself, the legality of which was never questioned by any official of the government. It was through such allotment that naval officers provided for the retention of such portion of their pay as was necessary for the support of their families while on cruises. The ruling threatened to work serious inconvenience in innumerable cases, and the naval committees of the two Houses at once took the question under consideration.

The Senate committee has now ordered Mr. Tillman to report a bill that will authorize the allotment of pay in accordance with the now established custom of the navy.

Naval Appropriations.

Washington, March 11.—The House Committee on Naval Affairs still has under consideration on the naval appropriation bill. While the measure has not been completed enough of its provisions are known to give an abstract of it approximating the shape in which it will be presented to the House. The important question of increasing the navy has not yet been agreed upon, but it is quite certain that a number of battleships and torpedo boats will be authorized. Members of the committee differ as to what this increase shall be. Some favor six battleships and 15 torpedo boats, while others want four battleships and from 20 to 30 torpedo boats. The bill will carry an appropriation outside of any authorized increase in the navy of about $28,500,000.

New York Federal Grand Jury.

New York, March 11.—The United States grand jury for the February term came into court to-day and reported over a dozen indictments. These cases include the charges against General Garcia and his Cuban compatriots, who were accused of a violation of the neutrality laws. United States District Attorney MacFarlane positively refused to give any information regarding the indictments filed.

Mr. Lynch is Pleased.

Washington, March 11.—Ex-Congressman Lynch of Mississippi, who will be at the head of the Republican delegation from his State to the national convention this summer is elated over his victory in the factional fight in Mississippi. Mr. Lynch's support will probably not be given to McKinley although he did not say so point blank.

A Suggestion from Paris.

Paris, March 11. Concerning the visit to Berlin of Count Goluchowski, Austrian minister of foreign affairs, the Figaro suggests that Austria may wish the Kaiser to explain his Russophile leanings.

Water Superintendent Frost yesterday received a message from Lake Moraine to the effect that Robert Mitchell of this city had been badly frozen. He and another man left the lake for the Strickler tunnel the day before and soon after separated. Mitchell got lost and wandered in the snow all night. He arrived at the lake house yesterday with his hands and feet frozen. Mitchell was in the employ of the contractors at work at the tunnel. He lives in this city and was brought here for treatment.

A Pleasant Gathering.

The Centennial Circle held an unusually interesting meeting on Monday afternoon with Mrs. C. F. Ormsby. The subject of the lesson was "Executive Department of Colorado," and was conducted by Mrs. J. H. Smith.

Mrs. Robbins presented for current topic: the death of Bill Nye. Responses to roll call were quotations from eminent women in literature. Mrs. A. B. Conwell conducted the parliamentary drill, and in order to experiment a little, primaries (imaginary) were held in the various townships, and delegates elected to attend a county convention to nominate candidates for election.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Hlmebaugh at the Spaulding house.

In the County court yesterday Emily White was granted a divorce from O. K. White, on the grounds of non-support.

Mines, Stocks, Investments

Colorado Springs Mining Stock Association.

Colorado Springs, March 11.—The day's business at the exchange was marked by the heavy trading in the "mines" among the listed stocks. These stocks were responsible for the bulk of the business transacted, but it was not all of a very gratifying nature, as the general tendency was towards bearishness, though some of the securities made a pretty good showing. Prominent in this respect were Portland, Mollie Gibson and Fanny Rawlings. The last named stock gained several points in price and sold at from 11¼ to 11¾, closing at the higher figure. Mollie Gibson made an upward move again, selling at 56 at the opening and closing at better than 60. It is said that insiders are on the market for the stock and the general belief in stock broking circles about it is that "something is going to happen," the something being a probable dividend. Portland made a good showing and is disappointing those who are short. It started to sell at $1.40 and went up two cents in spite of the talk of the bears that it is going down to $1.25, and even to the straight dollar. Union was lively, but a cent or two off from a day or so ago. It never went lower than 48, however, and there appears to be a big demand for it at present quotations. Work is lively at from 15 to 16, and is being held down carefully. Anaconda is strong at 68, Mt. Rosa at 16 and Hayden at 15½.

CONSOLIDATING EXCHANGES.

Questions in the Way Are Being Gradually Disposed Of.

A meeting of the Colorado Stock Exchange was held in the Gettysburg building yesterday afternoon for the consideration of the proposition to consolidate with the Denver Stock and Mine Exchange. Prior to the meeting an agreement to surrender the certificates of the Colorado Stock Exchange and receive in lieu thereof certificates of the Denver Stock and Mine Exchange, had been circulated and received the signatures of some 40 members. The meeting passed a resolution to the same effect, and as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made, the Colorado Stock Exchange will cease to exist.

The terms of the consolidation are that the Denver Mine and Stock Exchange shall issue certificates of membership to all members of the Colorado Stock Exchange in good standing upon the surrender of their certificates in the latter body, but shall not become responsible for any indebtedness, nor for any liabilities on account of the certificates. Some of the parties interested have already surrendered their certificates and others will follow in a few days.

An interesting question has arisen in connection with the matter. The Colorado Stock Exchange is a regularly incorporated stock company, while the Denver Stock Exchange is an association formed for trading in mining stocks, and not for the purpose of making a profit, as a corporate individual. The certificates therefore possess a certain legal standing of value, more or less, and the question has arisen whether the company should not go into liquidation for the purpose of wiping out its corporate existence before the responsibility to stock that may be outstanding shall cease. It is held by some that action of a majority of the stockholders is necessary to render the consolidation valid, and failing to secure such action the certificates surrendered should be regularly cancelled and new certificates issued in the name of the Denver Mine and Stock Exchange. In other words the last named body shall purchase the stock of such members as choose to join it. The question is likely to form a basis for a full-sized legal fee. (Denver Republican.

Weekly Letter Extracts.

Messrs. Raymond Reed & Co. in their weekly letter say:

"New Haven, Findley and Rattler are three comparatively cheap stocks that we think have great merit. The properties are all located in the producing belt, the management of each is conservative, and we believe stockholders in these companies will make money.

"Rumors are afloat that both Mollie Gibson and A. J. will soon be on the dividend list again. It will greatly strengthen the market if these old time silver producers again begin distributing money to their stockholders.

"We advise all our clients who have good stocks to hold them, and we consider the present the right time to invest in the standard stocks. An advance in prices is inevitable, and as long as Cripple Creek continues to improve and add to its list of shippers, it is a perfectly safe place for investments. Investors should carefully investigate the stocks they buy, or intrust their business to brokers who are thoroughly reliable and well informed; and if investments are made in this way there is but slight chance for loss.

"It is said that two large chlorination plants are soon to be erected in the Cripple Creek district. If their charges for treatment of ores are at all reasonable they will serve to greatly increase the output of the district. The present excessive rates charged by the smelters and samplers are responsible for the fact that a great deal of ore is being kept in reserve in the mines which would otherwise be shipped and the money put into circulation.

"A few Eastern newspapers, whose editors or reporters have never been in Cripple Creek, continue to cast aspersions on the district. In spite of this, however, the Cripple Creek mines are constantly increasing the production of stuff which the United States mints are willing to buy at the rate of $20.67 per ounce.

"If you are going to make but a moderate investment in stocks, put your money in companies whose properties are located strictly in the belt that contains the big pay mines; if you contemplate making a large investment come to Colorado and spend a couple of weeks in Cripple Creek and form your own conclusions."

The following items are from Messrs. Ferriday & Skinner's weekly letter:

"The Enterprise company, of which A. M. Ripley is president and J. A. Wright secretary, has about 600 feet of tunnels on its Dolly Varden claim at the foot of Raven hill. Part of the tunnel is being worked under a lease in which the company owns a one-fifth interest. A shaft is being sunk, and has reached a depth of 145 feet. A 100-foot drift has been run from this shaft at a depth of 80 feet. The work at present in progress is being carried on with the object of re-locating the Dolly Varden vein, which has produced $50,000 net to the company. Large bodies of low grade ore are now in sight. The improvements on the Dolly Varden claim consist of a two-story ore house and a shaft house. Hoisting is done by means of a single friction engine. Everything about the Enterprise property betokens good mining and careful and conservative management.

"At the annual meeting of the Garfield-Grouse the following directors were chosen: C. L. Tutt, president; R. W. Curtis, secretary; and W. H. Chittenden, treasurer. This company's fractional claim of 4½ acres on Bull hill has produced under lessees some $50,000, the royalties upon which in the last four months have reached $6000. The present lease has been extended to April 1, 1897, and the royalty put at 33 1-3 per cent."

Current News.

A strike is reported to have been made on Gas hill, belonging to the Gold Rock company.

Work on the Squaw Mountain tunnel was resumed to-day after 10 days' idleness, which was rendered necessary to put in a plant of machinery.

Three claims located on Grouse mountain were sold by C. P. Leynor to Chicago parties to-day. The consideration is placed at $1,200 cash.

Homer Hart has taken a lease on 100 feet of the north end of the Hardwood, belonging to the Damon company. William H. Ryan was given a lease on the adjoining 200 feet.

The Hill Top, located on the top of the north spur of Bull hill, is reported to be in good ore. A few days ago at a depth of 10 feet a vein was found which is over five feet wide with a good-sized pay streak that assays about nine ounces.

L. C. Summers and Robert Neil have secured seven blocks of ground on the Arequa placer, owned by the Maton company. These placers have been divided off into blocks 300 feet square and will be leased.

In the south drift at the 100-foot level on the Emma, which is owned by the Isabella company, a small seam of ore has been entered that assays from 25 to 30 ounces per ton. The property is being worked by the Galena company.

A road is being constructed to the Doctor lease on the Grace Greenwood. The dumps are filled with ore which are reported to run from two to 10 ounces per ton. This will add another shipper to the camp, and the first carload will be sent to the Denver smelters in a few days.

At a depth of 60 feet, H. Allen, who is working a lease on the north end of the Doctor mine, has opened a three-foot vein of ore that runs better than one ounce. The vein was badly broken at the point where it was cut, but Mr. Allen is confident that with depth it will be found in place.

Richard Hundro, of Shanghai, China, has been in camp for the past few days and has already purchased two patented claims, the Copperhead Nos. 1 and 2, located northwest of town on the south west slope of Mineral hill. He is representing Chinese tea merchants in the district. It is claimed that he will purchase other claims and may be a shipper some time in a few days.

The Mollie Kathleen, located on Womack hill, will begin regular shipments to-morrow. On the first of the year all the lessees on the property suspended shipments, as one of the conditions of continuance was that sinking should be continued until considerable depth was reached. The Phillips shaft is now down

200 feet and from this a car load will be sent to Denver to-morrow. The lift is now down a little over 200 feet and will be sunk to the 300-foot point before any ore is shipped. It will require about 45 days before any ore is mined on this shaft. Both are provided with steam hoisting plants.

WEST CREEK NOTES.

The Latest Doings in the New Gold Camp.

Captain Tyler has let a contract for the sinking of 50 feet additional on the Niagara shaft, now down 40 feet. The Captain thinks he will be shipping ore long before the 100-foot depth is reached. The ore now being taken out is of an excellent appearance and is just changing in composition and increasing in value.

C. E. Hornback, who is developing some claims in the Sheep Nose vicinity, is finding some elegant crystal specimens. Some smoky topaz specimens brought in by him to-day are as fine as ever seen.

Arrangements have been made for sinking 100 feet on the Happy Day claim just east of Pemberton. William Priddy and Rush Gibbony are the owners of this promising property and are using every effort in their power to develop and make of it one of the early mines of the district.

The Brooklyn, located one-half mile south of Sheep Nose mountain, has been sold to New York parties for $6,000, and a contract let to sink a 100-foot shaft on the property. The Cunningham brothers have the contract for doing the work. The purchasers are highly pleased with the prospects for an early paying mine.

Some splendid veins of porphyry are being opened up in the western part of the district. O. P. Williams has just completed the assessment work on a group of nine claims in the heart of this belt and has been offered a good figure for a bond and lease on a part of the property.

An association under the suggestive name of the Atwood Grub Stake association has been formed at Atwood, Kan., for the purpose of carrying on prospect work in the West Creek district. There are 25 members of the association.

The contract to drive the tunnel of the Pemberton Mining company another 50 feet will be let this week, which will make a total depth of 100 feet. It is thought the main dyke running through the hill will be cut on or before the completion of this contract.

The White Squadron Prospecting and Development company have just completed the assessment work on the Dolphin, west of Sheep Nose. The lead as already developed shows strongly mineralized sugar quartz in contact with other heavy iron-stained vein matter.

Tom Worley is developing a first class fissure vein in the Bob Tail in the lime belt east of Pemberton. An assay of $17 has been obtained from this property.

A. Sutcliffe and J. R. Graves are developing two promising groups of claims three miles west of Pemberton. The assessment work has been completed and a force of men are now employed sinking a shaft.

Some samples of ore from near Sheep Nose mountain, brought in this morning by Mr. T. B. Braisted, upon being crushed and washed showed good colors in the pan. The incident caused considerable excitement. This mountain, by the way, is erroneously called Sheep Nose, as its proper name as located upon the map is Camel's Back mountain and is so named in all surveys, charts, etc. Locally, however it is known altogether as Sheep Nose.

The Black Diamond group in the lime belt is at present showing up one of the best veins of honey-combed quartz to be seen in the district.

A special meeting of the Damon Gold Mining company was held in the city yesterday at which it was decided to increase the capital stock to 2,000,000 shares. All of the increase, which is 1,000,000 shares, goes into the treasury for the purchase of other properties and for the payment of the debts of the company, which can be paid in stock. After all debts are paid the company will have about 300,000 shares of stock left in the treasury. The purchases are the Sabina, Patti Rosa, Temple and Diamond. This will give the company about 25 acres of ground on Ironclad hill.

The Sheriff, located on Raven hill, and owned by Leo Jackson and others of Colorado Springs, is now shipping a big tonnage of low grade ore. The shaft, which is down 115 feet, is barren at this point. A granite horse came into the big vein of low grade ore at a depth of 60 feet, and at 115 feet, where work was abandoned a few months ago, the horse had absorbed the vein matter, leaving a little on each side of it. When work was resumed about 10 days ago a drift was started about 40 feet from the surface. North of this point the vein is about six feet wide, and without sorting it runs at out one ounce per ton. The ore is to be treated in the cyanide and chlorination mills in the district. Another vein has been opened up about 75 feet east of the main working shaft on the same property by lessees. At a few feet below the surface quartz bearing free gold was found to-day. The vein is a new one, and gives promise of developing into something good.

WEST CREEK NOTES.

From the Gazette's Special Correspondent in the Camp.

West Creek, Colo., March 9.—Again the weather has been good for several days, and prospectors and mine-owners have been making the best of it. Since much of the assessment work has been completed, a great deal more development work has been going on, and prospects are more encouraging than at any time since the camp has been established. The mountains being almost clear of snow, prospecting has gone on at a rapid pace, also showing splendid results. From almost every section better showings are being uncovered daily, and the saying that "gold is where it is found," is more fully demonstrated than ever. And like many theories and prophecies made and advanced in the past with reference to other districts some of them regarding this camp have been proven to be erroneous.

Such is the case concerning free gold in the West Creek district. Frequent reports of free gold being found here have been made, but it has not been proven until within the past few days. It now seems to be demonstrated beyond question. A piece of white quartz was brought in yesterday from the lime belt about four miles east of West Creek, El Paso county, by Mr. O. R. Felmler, that contained more than an ounce of free gold. One nugget weighing 64-10 grains was taken from the quartz, and can now be seen at the office of John A. Desh. Free gold has been found in encouraging quantities on the Lone Swede group in Missouri gulch, about four miles northeast of this place. The group is owned by the West Creek Mining and Milling company. The company has a shaft, 4x9 feet, 32 feet deep, and good mining machinery. A number of tests were made by G. W. Crawford of West Creek, who found free gold in every instance, and as a result of his investigations, purchased 100 shares of stock. Some parties have found free gold on their claims on Trout creek, east and northeast of here, but nothing definite can be learned regarding them at this time.

William Seapy and E. Cainot brought in ore yesterday from their shaft two miles north of Signal Butte, which is about four miles due west of this place, that contains free gold in considerable quantities. It was pulverized and then panned—showing gold and much black sand. The same ore was subjected to acid tests and after the foreign matter was consumed, free gold in dust form was shown in quantities that will pay well if sufficient quantities are uncovered, which it seems more than probable will be done in a few days.

The North Cripple Creek Townsite company, owning a group of claims about one and one-half miles east of West Creek, have an assay of $40 copper and $12.90 gold per ton from their 80-foot shaft, and are receiving sealed bids for having 50 feet added to the 80-foot shaft. The formation is composed principally of sulphide of copper, and have a vein a vein of about 24 inches. Picked specimens have run more than $100. The mineral lays in a velvet seam, and two pieces at the company's office contain free gold. The company says that shipments will be made soon.

A new find was made on Mineral hill to-day, one and one-half miles south of town, running $9.90 at the surface, and the vein is well-defined at the grass roots.

A prominent business man here who owns three claims near town had assays made to-day that run very high. A company will be organized at once for the development of the property. The owner of the property requests names and location to be kept from the public until corporation is complete.

The Gold Dyke company has struck jasper and blue porphyry at 20 feet on its property one mile south of town, and have an excellent showing.

The West Creek Townsite company has been timbering the Santa Fe the past two days. This shaft is down 75 feet, and assays still improving. The company is pushing work on the Mint, southeast of town, and showing better formations as depth is gained.

The Bud tunnel, now in 90 feet, and a vein has been struck, cutting the tunnel from the upper left hand corner, dipping westward, running out at the bottom, and is about 13 inches thick, and runs well. Work is being pushed by three shifts of men.

Captain Collins has the highest assay yet made on his bonded property just southeast of town, being $106. The assay was made by Hugh Matherson.

The Minnie Dale claim, two and one-half miles southwest, owned by Mr. Brophy of Colorado City, has a fine vein of quartz that begins at the surface about six inches thick and widens to about 10 inches at the bottom of the assessment shaft. The entire vein is composed of quartz and carries $18 per ton.

Two young men of Cripple Creek have struck a heavy vein of talc at a depth of seven feet on their property in the west edge of town, and they assert that it is the same as found at Cripple Creek, and they are making preparations to sink a shaft at once.

Prospects have never been as bright for the entire camp as at present, and the most conservative ones believe that there will be at least three regular shippers by the time spring opens.

Again I desire to call attention to the winter weather here. Eastern people, and I am told that many at the Springs think we are almost buried in snow up here. That is a great mistake. There have been but few days during the winter that prospecting was not carried on with but little inconvenience. The deepest snow that has fallen during the entire season has not been more than six inches, which has been melted rapidly by the sunshine that immediately followed. Of course the north sides of the mountains have snow two feet deep in places, but it only covers a comparatively small area. Hence, those who are waiting for spring, fearing snow slides and blizzards, are wasting time.

As the mining industry progresses, the town keeps apace with it. Every day

EASTERN MARKETS.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

New York, March 11.—Money on call easy at 2@3½ per cent., last loan at 3 and closing offered to 3. Prime mercantile paper 5@6½ per cent. Bar silver 68⅝. Mexican dollars 55@55¼. Sterling exchange firm with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87@4.87¼ for 60 days and $4.88@4.88¼ for demand. Posted rates $4.88@4.89; commerical bills $4.86@4.87¾. Government bonds easy; State bonds firm; railroad bonds higher. Silver at the board was neglected.

When it is said that American Tobacco figured for 239,800 shares yesterday, a grand total of 342,500 shares for the entire list, it about explains the market at the stock exchange to-day. Tobacco opened at 75½, rose to 82¾, receded to 72¾ and then recovered to 75¾@79. All sorts of rumors were afloat to account for sensational movements in the stock and the enormous dealings. It was said that a movement was on foot to settle the existing differences with its Western competitors, and that the company intended to resume dividends on the common at an early day. Both of these stories met with semi-official denials and later in the day the street finally settled down to the opinion that the recent wide fluctuations were due to manipulation by people alleged to have inside connections. One rumor was to the effect that a Southern director to the company, finding the stock heavily oversold inaugurated a campaign against the bears and had compelled a big Washington interest to cover. The fact that a well-known Washington firm was given up as a buyer of 50,000 shares, lent color to this theory.

In the afternoon trading, the excitement in this specialty abated and traders paid more attention to General Electric, Chicago Gas, Leather preferred and Cotton Oil. General Electric rose from 34⅞ to 35½.

Sugar rose from 112¾ to 116¾; Leather preferred from 60¾ to 62 and Cotton Oil preferred from 60¾ to 62½.

The railway list showed little life. At the start Burlington and Quincy, Missouri Pacific and Baltimore and Ohio were notably weak, falling ¾ to 1½ per cent., but in the latter session a steadier tone prevailed and the losses noted were partly regained. Speculation closed firm. Net changes show losses of ¾ per cent. in the railway list and gains of 1 to 3½ per cent. in the Industrial group.

Bonds were dull and firm. Sales were $1,177,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, March 11.—Wheat prices inclined downward to-day, the prime cause for which was found in the government's report of yesterday, giving the amount of wheat still in farmers' hands as 123,000,000 bushels. Liverpool cables came out with a decline of 3 farthings and explained the loss as being due to the United States Agricultural Department report. Prices at the start were ⅜ under the close of yesterday, and later additional fractional depreciation took place.

Corn—The government report on corn had little bearing on the price of that grain, although the farm reserve, as indicated officially, 1,072,000,000 bushels, was generally acknowledged to be correct in the main. The trade in this grain of late has kept the enormous supplies constantly in mind, so that prices have ruled low in consequence, and therefore no justification of an extraordinary break was to be found in the confirmation by the government of what was already known.

say they know they're on the Burlington the moment they strike it. It is so smooth and so delightfully free from jolts and jars and sudden starts and stops.

Another proof of the truth of what we say to bring home to you every week is the fact that for right down solid comfort the Burlington has no real competitor among the railroads of the West.

Omaha, Peoria, Chicago, St. Paul, Kansas City and St. Louis are only a few of the points to which it will pay you to take the Burlington.
